ABSTRACT

This booklet provides a listing of all the Catholic educational institutions that responded to a national survey of existing institutional development programs. No attempt was made to determine the quality of the programs. The information is provided on a regional basis so that development personnel can more readily make contact with their peers. The institutions are listed alphabetically within each state grouping, and each state is listed alphabetically within the six regions of the country. Listings are also provided for schools in Belgium, Canada, Guam, Italy, and Puerto Rico. (PGD)

INTRODUCTION

Pastors, principals, development officers and others interested in the development of Catholic institutions through the application of development techniques often ask for models of various development programs that might be identified and emulated. This book provides a listing of all responders to a national survey of all existing development programs. No attempt was made to determine the quality of existing programs. If a card was returned indicating the existence of development activity in a location, that instiution was chosen for inclusion in this directory.

Networking among Catholic institutions is a technique whose potential is only partially realized. It is the opportunity for practioners to talk with peers about the implementation of the phases of development, as well as the joys and heartaches which can accompany such work. This book provides information on a regional basis about the location of development programs. This will be useful to the degree that practioners use it to come into closer communication with each other.

Dr. Ellis Joseph, Dean of the School of Education, and Dr. Donald Frericks, Head of the Department of Educational Administration, both of the University of Dayton were the instigators of this directory. As indicated elsewhere, they also made certain that NCEA had the resources to conduct the survey gathering the data. I am most grateful for their continuing interest in a process to bring development to American Catholic institutions.

The Development Office/NCEA remains ready to be helpful in promoting regional communications. reports of such activities resulting from this publication are always appreciated at the national office.
